

Adultery and Politics

With Herman Cain's announcement that he was suspending his presidential campaign because of the charges of sexual harassment and of a 13-year-long affair, issues are raised that the country would do well to think through.

The two most obvious are whether we should care about a politician's sexual life, and how much the press should report about these matters.

Keep reading this post . . .