

Cain Lost in the Labyrinth

'Abandon All Hope, Ye Who Enter Here,' is the placard that Herman Cain must have read last week when he descended into the Sexual Harassment Inferno, from which he has not yet emerged.

I thought it was only a matter of when, not whether, Gloria Allred, the leftwing billboard lawyer, would show up at a press conference with more "evidence" of Cain's "serial" transgressions against the meek and defenseless of yesteryear. All the usual Allred landmarks were there: her crass quip, "stimulus package"; the "no-questions" evasion of cross-examination; the long-distant, heretofore-dormant act of harassment some 14 years in the past, whose graphic details were not shared at the time even with close friends, but are now oddly to be disclosed to 300 million.

Keep reading this post . . .