

Margaret Sanger and the War on Compassion

'The movement she started will grow to be, a hundred years from now, the most influential of all time in controlling man's destiny on earth.'

The famed novelist H. G. Wells once praised a prominent woman thus. Such a powerful statement brings certain questions to mind. Who was this woman? What did she do that so deeply affected society? And did she influence the world for the good?

Keep reading this post . . .