

Our Quartet in Tampa

Everything seems very serious, very important, very consequential now. The earlier debates – months ago – were looser. The eight or nine candidates would bounce onto the stage. Romney would greet Bachmann with a big mwah. Cain would smile brightly.

The atmosphere was almost festive.

Keep reading this post . . .